

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgments,	p. 9
Introduction: Ecological Readings: Nature, Human and Posthuman Dimensions in Scottish literature and arts Philippe Laplace	p. 11
* Part one: Nature and the Environment: Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries
‘A Full Idea of Your Own Country’: Paradise or Wilderness? Scottish Tourists on the Home Tour Anne McKim	p. 25
The Politics of Nature in ‘Praise of Ben Dorain’ Alan Riach	p. 39
The Representation of Land in the Gaelic Poetry of the Clearances Christian Auer	p. 61
Robert Burns: Nature’s Bard and Nature’s Powers Yann Tholoniati	p. 75
How Walter Scott Wrote the Scottish National Landscape. A Study of the Sublime and the Picturesque in Three Jacobite Novels Sarah Bisson	p. 93
Paradise Lost or Creation Regained? Nature and Culture in Walter Scott’s Redgauntlet Cyril Besson	p. 113
Recreating an Ideal Landscape: a Community’s Approach to the Designed Landscape of Cally David Steel	p. 127
The Evolution of the Representation of Highland Landscapes by Scottish Painters between the XVIIIth and the XXIst Centuries Marion Amblard	p. 143

 Part II: Nature, the Environment and the Posthuman:
Twentieth and Twenty-First Centuries

- Hugh MacDiarmid and the Scottish Landscape: Landscape as Sign p. 161
Béatrice Duchateau
- The Posthuman as an Oxymoronic Mirror to Man's Paradoxes in Iain
Crichton Smith's 'Deer on the High Hills' p. 175
Jean Berton
- The Hieroglyphic of Raindrops: Reading the Signs of Nature in The Warlock of Strathearn by Christopher Whyte p. 187
Robin MacKenzie
- 'I think of Them as Guests': John Burnside's Encounters with Nature p. 201
Monika Szuba
- Basho Borne on the Carrying Stream: the Word-Mapping of Scotland and the Eco-poetics of Wind Power in Alec Finlay's The Road North and Skying p. 217
Stewart Smith
- 'Hoping No-One Will See the Difference': An Ecocritical Reading of Recent Poems by Meg Bateman p. 235
William Welstead
- Scottish Petroliterature 1993-2013: Poetics of an Oil Spill p. 249
Camille Manfredi
- 'Land-scaping' the Scottish Stage and Drama p. 263
Danièle Berton-Charrière
- Shall We Try 'Something New'?: The Posthuman in Brian McCabe p. 281
Jessica Aliaga Lavrijsen
- Notes on the Contributors,* p. 297
- Index,* p. 301