

Contents

The Call of the Sea. Rivers, Mouths and Seas in the Ancient World

Anne DAGUET-GAGEY, Pierre SCHNEIDER, Introduction	9-13
I - SEAS, RIVERS AND DIVINITIES (ANTIQUITY – MIDDLE AGES)
Anne DAGUET-GAGEY, The Tiber, Nourishing God-River, and River of the Origins: The Contribution of Numismatics	17-37
Marie-Odile CHARLES-LAForge, Two Examples of Water Deities in Pompeii: Sarnus and Venus Pompeiana	39-67
Claire BARAT, Sinope and the Sea: Marine and Maritime Cults	69-84
Stéphane LEBRETON, The Landscape of the Estuary: A Reliquary of Signs?	85-118
Jean-Louis PODVIN, Isis and the Water	119-136
Marc SUTTON, The Place of Religion in the River Landscape and in Life on the River: The Example of the Meuse and Some Rivers of Medieval France	137-148
II - SEAS AND RIVERS: NAVIGATION CONDITIONS (FROM THE HELLENISTIC PERIOD TO THE 16TH CENTURY AD)
Monique DONDIN-PAYRE, Arrived Safely! The Water Travellers' Ordinary Life, as Reflected by Epigraphy	151-163
Lucia ROSSI, Sailing on the Nile during the Hellenistic Age: Nautical Environments, Practices, Norms	165-192
Ana ROQUE, Navigation and Nature Observation in the Sixteenth Century: The Role of Birds in Portuguese Maritime Voyages	193-211
Pierre SCHNEIDER, About the Location of Ptolemais Thêrôn (Ptolemais of the Hunts) in the Periplus of the Erythraean Sea : A Short Note.	213-222
Abstracts.	223-229
Index of Sources	231-241
Index of Names	243-249