

Contents

Sommaire	7
Pierre COSME, Jean-Christophe COUVENHES, Sylvain JANNIARD, Giusto TRAINA, Michèle VIROL, General Presentation	13-18
Part one: The war narrative, source and literary genre
Michèle VIROL, Presentation of the First Part: The War Story, Source and Genre	21-25
A- Rewritings and reconstructions of the facts in the war narrative
Jean-Christophe COUVENHES, The Violence Imposed on the Defeated Gauls: the Memorial of Attalus I Narrative in the Second Half of the 3rd Century BC	29-56
Sergio BOFFA, Reporting Single Combat in the Middle Ages: an Impossible Challenge	57-70
Michel BIARD, A War that Does not Kill, or so Little... Wounds and Death in the Recueil des actions héroïques et civiques des républicains français (1794)	71-85
Mathieu ENGERBEAUD, Fights Interrupted by the Natural Elements in the Narratives of the Archaic Roman Wars (6th-3rd Centuries BC)	87-99
B- The freedoms of the narrative and the acts of war
Pierre COSME, The Silences of the War Narratives about the Battle of Actium	103-113
Gilles GRIVAUD, The Military's Eye, the Civilian's Eye: Squint Readings of the Cyprus War (1570-1571)	115-130
Marino VIGANÒ, War, Violence, "Arrangement" in Handwritten Sources about Gian Giacomo Trivulzio, Marshal of France (Crema 1442-Chartres 1518)	131-152
C- The war narrative as a literary genre
Jean-Michel CARRIÉ, The War Narrative in Antiquity (1): Suggesting Lines for a Linguistic-Semiotic Analysis	155-182
Eric DUROT, The Epistolary Account of the Siege of Metz (1552) by the Duke of Guise: a Narrative of Self-Worth	183-194
Fadi EL HAGE, From the Construction of the Source to the Construction of Oneself: the War Narrative in Eighteenth Century French Officers's Memoirs and Memories	195-209
Sylvie CROGIEZ-PÉTREQUIN, Synthesis of the first part: Saying the war, describing the war?	211-217

Part two: The violence of soldiers in the war narrative

Sylvain JANNIARD, Presentation of the second part:
Soldier violence in the war narrative	221-223
A- Battles, combatants and war violence
Anne-Emmanuelle VEISSE, Violence of the Rebels and Repressive Violence in Egypt at the Turn of the 3rd and 2nd Centuries BC	227-238
Jean-Marc LARGEAUD, Violence and the Infernal Retreat – the Armies of the Loire 1870-1871	239-254
Maxime PETITJEAN, The Headhunter Horsemen of the Roman Army: a New Look at Imperial Era Documentation	255-272
Guillaume SARTOR, The Place of the Federates in the Line of War Violence (3rd Century-6th Century)	273-290
B- Standards and violences of war
Pascal BUTTERLIN, Skulls and Piles of Bones, or the Forced State March in the Ancient Prehistoric Near East	293-314
Natasha LUBTCHANSKY, Claude POUZADOUX, The Imaging of War Violence: Cross-Readings of Etruscan and Italiote Representations (6th-3rd Centuries BC)	315-336
Athina KOLIA-DERMITZAKI, The Attitude of the Soldiers in Warfare as Reflected in the Byzantine Sources (9th-12th Centuries)	337-353
Pascal PAYEN, Norms and War Violence in Greek Epic and Historiography (from Herodotus to Polybus)	355-369
C- The violence of combatants through the filter of sources
Marilia LYKAKI, The Violence of Soldiers in Byzantium (9th-10th Centuries): the Testimonies of Theodosius the Monk and Theodosius the Deacon as War Stories	373-386
Séverin DUC, “Go Straight to Where Mars Stands”. The Dreamlike Epistle of Dauphin François about the Death in Action of Gaston de Foix in Ravenna (1512)	387-398
Debra KELLY, Battlefields: Experiences and Representations	399-414
Jean-Christophe COUVENHES, Synthesis of the second part:
Soldiers’ violence, between the imaginary and the real	415-418

Part three: The place of civilians in war narratives

Pierre COSME, Presentation part three: The place of civilians in war stories	421-424
A- Categories of civilians
Jean-Claude CHEYNET, The Place of Civilians in Byzantine War Stories	427-439
Ghislaine STOUDEUR, The Roman Old Men in War Accounts during the Republic	441-455
Clément OURY, The Role of the Ecclesiastics during the War of the Spanish Succession (1701-1714)	457-472
B- Forgotten civilians
Nadine BERNARD, War Narratives of the Greeks: Is there a Place for the Elderly?	475-491
Michèle VIROL, Civilians, Largely Forgotten in the Siege Relations of the 17th Century Wars	493-507
C- Civilian narrators
Sylvain JANNIARD, The Account of His "Guerilla Warfare" by Synesios of Cyrene (ca 405-413)	511-523
Françoise MICHAUD-FRÉJAVILLE, From Christine de Pizan to Anatole France, the Stories of Joan of Arc Meeting Failure in Front of Paris (1429)	525-541
Pierre ALLORANT, Civilians in Epistolary Correspondence from a French Napoleonic Grande Armée Military Doctor with his Wife at Home in France (1802-1812)	543-554
Ghislaine STOUDEUR, Synthesis of the third part: The place of civilians in war stories	555-558
Hervé DRÉVILLON, General conclusion	559-572
Abstracts	573-596
Index place name	597-600
Index of names of characters, authors, people, states	601-609
Index of concepts, notions, type of sources	611-618